Japanese Rule Air, Have Temporarily Sea Command In Warfare Far East

Army, the Prime Minister declared "Our air-boat flotilla and naval light forces of all kinds are strained to the utmost limit."

Thus, as a result of Japan's entry into the war, Britain must reckon with "an evident prolongation of the war—perhaps until 1943 or 1944."

He also announced that he shortly would submit a scheme for post-war reconstruction which would be a "very important" one. "We cannot be sure in the last war that victory was not won upon us unexpectedly. Even without sensational victories, we suggested a successful conclusion of the war might come for the United States through the efforts of its allies."

"It would not be necessary even if the German line were over all the territory they have absorbed. Germany might be defeated more easily in the last year of the war than in the first year of the war."

He said that "however tempting it may be at some time of trouble that fire should be stepped aside and let someone else take the heavy and repeated blows which are coming," he does not intend to adopt that cowardly course.

Referring to the increased shipping losses, he asserted that "From the moment Japan attacked we are in a position to lose our ships, aircraft, troops and equipment by a scale limited only by the available shipping."

He said Britain's shipping losses since the war began have been very heavy.

"After predicting a 'final victory' for the United Nations, he said: "The odds through which we have to pass will be learning and practicing. But if everyone goes on with unrelenting effort, we will win and we will have the right to look forward to a new world of peace and prosperity and a happy and secure world."

He asserted that, even without the aid of the United States, the United Nations might win the war, but it would not be necessary for the German line to be over all the territory they have absorbed. "We are not sure that we are not in a position to win more easily in the last year of the war than in the first year of the war."

He said he had no more news of what had happened at Singapore, upon the fall of which he would not attempt to pass judgment. "We are not sure that we are not in a position to win more easily in the last year of the war than in the first year of the war."

Declaring he was satisfied with the present assignments of various cabinet members in the war effort, he said he had no intention of making any further changes. "Only a few under-secretaries will be shifted," he indicated.

Expressing regret at the loss to the government of his "colleague" who had been placed in the "cabinet" in his hands in order to facilitate the changes of the past week, Mr. Churchill, named the "They had, of course, no greater share of responsibility than the rest of the cabinet in the disasters which have fallen on us in the Far East."

He said he was sure the government "had achieved a more steady hand" and was completely satisfied with the new cabinet. "The new cabinet will be a more steady hand than the old one."

Mr. Churchill had shaken up his government twice within a few days. "A week first in reflecting the loss of the war cabinet with the inclusion of Mr. Stafford Cripps, and Sunday by another revision in which five ministers were dropped and Mr. James G. Thompson, minister."

He said Capt. Oliver Lattimore, newly-named minister of state in charge of production in the war, would soon be replaced by Lord Beaverbrook as minister of production. "The new cabinet will be a more steady hand than the old one."

He added that the whole production supply system was being re-organized. "The new cabinet will be a more steady hand than the old one."

Lord Beaverbrook as minister of production was subject to certain limitations, which he was being re-organized for a new one.

The new war cabinet, he asserted, bore a "fairly close resemblance" to that which David Lloyd George successfully directed Britain's efforts in the last war.

In the last two months there has been a most serious increase in shipping losses, he declared.

"We are in a position to win more easily in the last year of the war than in the first year of the war."

He said that "however tempting it may be at some time of trouble that fire should be stepped aside and let someone else take the heavy and repeated blows which are coming," he does not intend to adopt that cowardly course.

land have already signed up for service and many of its people assisted the need for a peace. New South and New Brunswick opinion is that the problem is principally a fight between British Ontario and French Quebec.

But grave warnings have come from the police and the military of both Atlantic and Pacific coasts that Canada is in danger of invasion and for the moment all parties in the House of Commons have forgotten party for a while and are united in demand for adequate air and sea forces for B.C. coast, which with the exception of Vancouver coastal islands total more than 5,000 miles of shoreline.

DANGER IN MARITIMES

In the Maritimes, the danger has been stressed in the speech from the throne in provincial legislatures. "More than 1,000 miles of coastline," said Premier G. A. MacMillan of Nova Scotia, has declared that "Submarines are right around our coast. I would not be surprised to see the enemy's submarines in the Maritimes."

Belief that Britain is the bridge between the Atlantic and Pacific Europe to finish off Germany is still predominant in Canada. "We are not sure that we are not in a position to win more easily in the last year of the war than in the first year of the war."

campaigns have been one of the prime factors in the success of the early results, that there have been obstacles to date among employees of other city firms, campaign officials stated.

Several firms have already achieved the 100 per cent category and the campaign officials are determined to get the rest of the city to the 100 per cent mark. The plan is determined to acquire the required number of bonds, being the largest firm in the city to achieve that honor.

"FIRST AND FURTHEST"

Harry Hyatt is general manager of the plan.

Campaign officials have adopted a slogan that is spreading over the city like wildfire. Now that the city was first to reach its objective, campaign officials are determined to get the rest of the city to the 100 per cent mark. They are working untiringly to back up the "First and Furthest Over the Top" slogan.

A total of 1,103 applications were filed in Wednesday to bring the campaign total to 7,715. Several record exceeds last year's total applications for the three weeks campaign.

Campaign officials under the chairmanship of R. E. Staples are determined to get the money roll.

RETURNS ARE BRISK

Returns from the employee firms are expected to be brisk. The campaign has many firms coming close to the 100 per cent subscription.

The general canvasser, 50 strong, are making a house-to-house canvass of several "special names" applicants were listed.

The canvasser has been re-adjusted now with the percentage of returns beginning at 100 per cent. The only not only knock over the three "A" names, but in doing so will have the flag out from under them.

Each firm now has a new man on the job, another hour per week for the citizens of Edmonton, and the officials determined to get the campaign to the three-week mark.

THE DRAW FOR THE 100 bonds five per cent of the armed forces are expected to be brisk. The campaign has many firms coming close to the 100 per cent subscription.

STETTINUS

Stettinus said the requested new appropriation is to meet lend-lease requirements of the remainder of 1942, exclusive of military and naval material which will be provided for by the regular appropriations.

He said virtually all of $125,000,000 previously appropriated for lend-lease had been allocated for procurement.

Aggies Win University Of Alberta Basketball Title

Inter-Fac Hockey
Ag-Com-Law Team Ousted From Varsity Payoff Race

WALANT try by Ag-Comm-Law for a playoff position in the University Interfac Hockey League came to an abrupt end when the Aggie boys and the Med-Pharm-Deeds tagged a 9-5 score on the Bob Schrader's A-C-L combination at the Varsity outdoor rink Monday night.

The Aggie club, in bottom place in the league standings, one point back of the Bulldogs, needed only a win to gain the playoff call over those same Engineers. The side rule boys, in the first game of the final double header schedule played Monday night, got in soundly by the fast working A-C-L.

The A-C-L squad, led team at the start of the Varsity circuit, came through with a 9-5 win over the Engineers last Wednesday to play in the elimination race for third place.

PLAYOFFS WEDNESDAY
First round of the playoffs will start this Wednesday at 8 p.m. with the Engineers meeting the Arts. Stan Mohr, director of the circuit, announced following results of Monday's games. Engineer Arts will be a 5-3 loss to the Bulldogs, with final game set for Friday at 7 p.m.

Playing-coach Mackay assured himself of the Henry Singer Clothier award for the leader's high scoring average, when he pushed across one goal, and assisted in two scoring efforts for the M-P-D crew. His total stands at 33 points, followed by those of teammate Dimock 21, and Perton Baker 20. Baker is tied with Vay Kuzky, Arts' star player, who picked up one goal Monday night to make his total 20.

The Med faculty boys dominated play for two full periods, holding the A-C-L outfit scoreless, while they garnered in five corners.

FINE IN THIRD
Ag-Comm-Law opened up in the third period, getting five goals in quick order. With the score 15-5 against them, after two minutes to go, the A-C-L boys of strategy assembled on pulling out their capable goaltender, Al Harrison, and substituting another forward. This decision backfired and the M-P-D's tallied on two breakaways, one with the A-C-L goal completely undefended.

Frank Quigley, who has meant much to A-C-L attacks, was not present for the game.

ARTS BEAT ENGINEERS
Gordon Pybus again peered the Arts to another victory, getting three goals in the Arts' nine-period game. The Engineers' Lindsay Culbertson assisted in three; playing-coach Jack Quigley got two; Roy Lemieux got two markers; and Gil Brimacombe and Kuzky picked up each.

Ed Crowder had the privilege of scoring the Engineers' sole tally. The Arts-Bulldog game, although a crucial one for the Engineers if the A-C-L boys had won their series with the M-P-D's, provided nothing more than a pre-playoff warmup for the Arts and they made the most of it, getting the scoring plays needed for a decisive crack at the league title.

Engineers, without the playing services of Coach Bud Chetney, again had trouble organizing both for the offensive and the defensive.

Your Figure Madame!

We are inclined to think of prosperity as being able to keep up with the Joneses. But according to an eminent psychiatrist it consists simply in spending less than we have! The formula is recommended for the peace of mind, the good night's sleep, and physical fitness that are such influential factors in the maintenance of individual and national morale.

Dr. Warren Stearns, originator of this theory, is Dean of Tufts Medical School and a member of the National Academy of Medicine, Naval Academy. He has made a study of

New York Fashion Group. However, is physical fitness. Obviously, you cannot enjoy a high morale unless you feel well. The state departments are doing everything in their power to help us to health and there are all kinds of health programs—including nutrition and exercise. But

It is up to the individual to see that the person he is talking to is not drinking too much or wearing shoes that hurt.

"It is heally important to be honest," Dr. Stearns believes. "If a person can wake up in the morning and be really honest with himself, he is apt to have good morale."

Another important factor is your prestige. "We live in a media of prestige," Dr. Stearns says. "It is pleasant, but finds the world full of porcupines. If he is amiable, he is not going to be able to get close to good morale. Don't discuss your health or your operation. Get with the crowd—you will be better off."

Dr. Stearns adds, "It is important that we accept leadership even though in the end we might not agree with our leaders."

Both personal and national morale are important. "We must maintain balance between good and bad factors in our lives," Dr. Stearns said in closing. "We must be able to identify ourselves with the good forces. This makes for better morale."

create around us a group which is better.

BRIDE CAME FORTH

By Louise Holmes

VICKY GAYLORD is being painted by her wedding gown by Miss LAFRANCE, famous painter who first met the girl in a department store where she was in a dress. She is a model. Both Vicky and Eric, however, are friends of Bill, and Andy NORTHWOOD, though Vicky still doesn't like him. She is about to marry JAMES ALBERT, a man she met when she was in the store. He is a good fellow, but Vicky really is not really ready. Vicky really is not ready to determine who is better. She is determined to marry the man from Albert—whose other name is James Albert. Vicky really is not ready to give up Vicky. Maude, Vicky's sister, is in a bad way. Vicky is determined to give up Vicky. Maude, Vicky's sister, is in a bad way. Vicky is determined to give up Vicky. Maude, Vicky's sister, is in a bad way.

CHAPTER XXI

VICKY took a northbound taxi to Fifty-third street. Alighting, she walked west to Radio City. Meeting a few friends, she finally arrived at the knockdown door of Studio B. Inside she presented the card from Kirk Clarkson and was sent to Betty—no one ever called him anything else—the audition director.

Studio B was like a small theatre, equipped with a stage, glass enclosed listening booth, row upon row of seats. The stage was crowded with smiling singers, comedians, specialty artists, with agents and gag men and musicians.

A tall, beautifully dressed girl hid the center of the stage. She was singing, her voice coarse and heavy, the time broken in the current, swirling fashion. There was rhythm in her singing and in her dance. Between choruses she milled down into the eyes of a florid, baldheaded man in the first row of chairs, at the same time continuing her rhythmic motions. He smiled back, fatuously.

Vicky stood just inside the door watching listening. An older woman addressed her.

"What's your line?" she asked.

"I hope you can do better than Kathy Jordan," nodding at the singer.

"I think I can," Vicky said modestly.

"Look at her first with the

Little Orphan Annie MONDAY through FRIDAY

6:00 to 6:15 p.m.

"Jack don't love me—and I thought he did—I was sure, Mother. He hasn't phoned for a week. Vicky said nothing. "It's because I'm not pretty any more—my face is all swollen. He said, 'What can I do—what can I do?' " "That is very simple, my child," came the voice of Annie Smith. "You can't do anything. The new cake of Rose Petal soap will wash your face into your face, rinse with cool water and dry. Try it and see what happens."

There was a second scene. Jack had been bowled over by the amazing results of Rose Petal soap. All was wonderful.

"Hello," Vicky said, under her breath.

Annie Smith had taken it seriously. Overhearing Vicky, she related, "Show me an easier way to make your living."

Vicky, with the others, was excused for lunch. Sitting at the counter in the corner drug store, she reviewed the morning. Evidently her soul had gone over well, else she would have been dismissed.

The gentleman whom Annie Smith had admitted to the manager of the Universal Broadcasting company had made a point of asking her to return at two.

Eating a chicken sandwich, she glanced from the window to see Kathy Jordan and the florid sponsor enter a cab. "But she can't sing," Vicky almost assuredly said.

For a moment she felt that she was a great success. The time being, she turned to the window to see Kathy Jordan and the florid sponsor enter a cab. "But she can't sing," Vicky almost assuredly said.

Weldon French had written, "Artist in Manhattan and elsewhere, attention—late warning—leave away your brushes and palette. Your paintings. According to inside information, Eric Lalimer has struck the jackpot. Eric has painted another girl, but this time he hadn't his tongue in his cheek."

A life-size portrait of an honest-to-goodness bride, name unknown—but what a bride. Make reservations for the November exhibit, standing room only.

AGONY AGAIN

Vicky allowed the newspaper to slip from her hand to the floor. Agony crept over her again, more poignant because of its partial cessation. Desperately trying to face forward again, she threw back her head. It didn't matter. Eric's painting was the little bride who wouldn't have been waiting for it, a rather show it. What difference did it make—what difference did anything make?

After while the torment passed, leaving her listless and drained. She returned to Betty's office. Annie Smith was there and the Rose Petal soap sponsor, and the manager of the station. Ford Dunham lounged gravely in a leather chair.

The wilted Betty introduced Vicky to the station manager, Mr. Cartwright by name, a ponderous man with iron gray hair and a stern expression.

"For that reason," Mr. Cartwright boomed on, "I am offering you a position as commercial sponsor for the Universal Broadcasting Company. This will include work on the Rose Petal soap hour. Twenty-five dollars a week. Report tomorrow morning. That is all. You may go."

Red Army Toasted At Reception Of Russ Ambassador

LONDON, Feb. 24. CP. Six hundred guests toasted the Red Army with hot Russian wine at a reception Monday night at the Soviet embassy in celebration of the army's 24th birthday.

Prime Minister Churchill was busy with affairs of state and could not attend, but Mrs. Churchill was there as well as most of the members of the war cabinet.

Russian Ambassador and Mme. Maslowsky received the guests.

What To Do

When may guests at church weddings leave the church? What are the duties of the guests if the bride party forms a receiving line in the rear of the church?

Answer—Guests at a church wedding always must remain in their places until the end of the reception, and until the bride's mother and the groom's mother have left the church.

It is very rude to break into the marriage to congratulate the happy couple, but if the wedding party forms a receiving line in the rear of the church, then the guests, if they leave the church, will get into the line and offer their best wishes.

They will congratulate the bridegroom and with the bride every happiness. Never congratulate a bride on having found a husband.
